

ACCREDITATION AND APPROVAL

qualified & accredited to provide training to a wide range of private & public sector bodies

a professional decision

The training provider you choose must reflect the integrity of your own organisation and your own professionalism. It must be flexible to meet your operational requirements, and offer safe, modern training that is relevant to your needs - and importantly - it must offer value for money

Lives may depend on the actions your people take after training - so getting it wrong is not an option. From training First Responders, and Emergency Medical Technicians, through to IHCD Paramedics and Advanced Life Support Providers, you have to make a professional decision: "Who do I choose to correctly train my people?"

When the action has to be right first time - every time - you choose professionals - those who have current qualifications, relevant experience, and the proven ability to train others to high exacting national and international standards - those that can deliver to the standards of JRCALC, IHCD, the Royal College of Surgeons, EIHS, and the Royal College of Nursing.

You choose a provider who continues to invest in state of the art training equipment and who ensures its own Instructors undergo regular update training on latest techniques. You choose the training provider who is the leader in its field, who is flexible in its provision and provides value for money.

For over 19 years we have specialised in a select range of immediate care and pre-hospital training courses at our own training centre. We are the largest provider of pre-hospital trauma and medical training outside the NHS. We also provide a number of specialist hospital in-service courses.

We consult with you to ensure that we fully understand the training needs of your people - and we are flexible to best meet your operational needs. All Instructors are professional and fully qualified, being drawn from the NHS, or the Emergency Services, and undergo regular update training to ensure that they are training your people in the latest safe techniques. To maintain our industry lead, courses are competency based, with clearly defined training and development outcomes.
