

Accreditation, Approval & Recognition

qualified & accredited to provide training to a wide range of independent private & public sector bodies

The training provider or service provider you choose must reflect the integrity of your own organisation and your own professionalism. It must be flexible to meet your operational requirements, provide safe, modern training that is relevant to your needs, and importantly - it must offer value for money.

Lives may depend on the actions your people take after training, so getting it wrong is not an option. Your first responders, EMS crews and rescue personnel expect you to choose the correct training provider for them, and expect you to get it right first time.

At Lifeskills Medical, we ensure that our training and services provision meets and exceeds the high standards set by relevant external bodies. This may be by accreditation, approval, or recognition of our provision. Lifeskills Medical is qualified and holds such accolades to provide training to a wide range of independent and public sector bodies - both large and small, in the UK and overseas.

At our UK and overseas training centres you will always receive full consultancy, coupled with best-practice, and cost-effective modern training recognised and respected throughout the world. That's why professionals choose Lifeskills Medical.
